

Our Mutual Friend.

MISS GRACE B. SHERWOOD Teachers Training

This widely known volume is an excellent treatise on modern education. When teachers are in doubt as to method, discipline, or organization of material, they consult "Our Mutual Friend" and a page of its explicit language clears away all perplexities.

"Did that sink in?"

Cabbages and Kings.

T. M. McCALL

Horticulture

This story is a strange combination of comedy and technicalities. The hero has the happy faculty of saying the right thing at the psychological moment.

"We'll take up some lecture work this morning."

Anne of Green Gables.

MRS. ANNA F. HAIG

English

Anne is a little brown volume with which all A. C. students are familiar. She is a sort of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" in her love of high-flown language, her "much ado about nothing" and her friendly, sympathetic attitude.

"Oh come on, folks, come on."
