

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

An organization of unusual interest to the young women students and faculty. The purposes of this club are manifold primarily, however, to interest the girls in the larger problems of living together. It is essentially a study club, the programs including such practical problems of the household and such studies as "Dickens's Characters," "Famous Paintings," "Musical Artists," "Stories of the Stars," "Mythological Interpretation of Nature," endeavoring to give all members a larger appreciation and a more wholesome interest in life about them.

Each year the club entertains the whole school by giving a program as a culmination of its efforts. Two programs, which have been rendered are as follows:

"AN EVENING WITH DICKENS"

All the noted characters from Dickens spend the evening with "Mrs. Markham," each guest taking his character part. We find that "The world is full of the stuff for hearty laughter and deep sympathy." Everybody is an oddity, and if we had the observation and twist of humor which Dickens possessed, we'd see there was the "Dickens in us all."

"AN EVENING ON MT. OLYMPUS."

All the Goddesses meet in Juno's court and relate to an interested audience their many duties which they perform with care and diligence. Everyone is convinced that "mythology is a treasure-house filled with golden tales and glimmering thoughts, fancies rich bejewelled."
