

GREETING TO CLASS OF 1921 OF THE NORTHWEST SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE:

It is a pleasure to extend greetings to the Senior Class of the Northwest School. You are completing your course at the Crookston School at a time when all sorts of social, political and economic questions are awaiting solution. Mankind everywhere is seeking knowledge for the solution of these problems. They will require the most thoughtful consideration and careful study on the part of everyone.

The training which you have had at Crookston should have given you a wider view and have made you more keenly sensitive to your responsibilities as citizens. We feel that we have a right to expect that you will discharge your obligations and duties and responsibilities as citizens in an intelligent and efficient manner, and that the communities in which you live will be better because of the education that they have provided for you.

Sincerely yours,

L. D. COFFMAN, President.
