

TO THE STUDENTS OF THE
NORTHWEST SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE:

It is with mixed emotions that I write to you this, my last note of congratulation and greeting. I have been more interested than you can realize in the success of your work. I have been a firm believer in the type of vocational education which our schools of agriculture represent. It has been a constant source of satisfaction and pleasure to see this education working out fruitfully in the lives of the students and alumni.

I congratulate you most heartily and extend to you, one and all, faculty, students, and alumni, my very best wishes for your continued health, happiness and success.

Very truly yours,

R. W. THATCHER, Dean.
