To the Class of 1925:

To have a vision is better than to be a dreamer. A vision creates ideals; it is an impelling force that drives one onward to a realization, while a dreamer idles along the way. The horizon of one's vision for service becomes broader in the preparation for life's work. The three years spent at the Northwest School have, perhaps, unconsciously widened your vision for service. Because of the influence that surrounded you while on the campus here, you are just that much more capable of meeting the issues of your chosen work and the problems of life. When the mind is kept renewed, ideals today, will give place to achievements to-morrow. Let not Commencement Day end the growth of your vision, for that day should be the beginning of realization.
