THE members of the Advanced Class realize that an education does not lie wholly in receiving a diploma. We believe that a person is never able to graduate from the school of experience. With such ideals in mind, we have returned to our Alma Mater to enlarge our learning in academic branches. Besides having attained scholastic honors at the Northwest School, we comprehend the invaluable merits of participation in school activities. Though our class diminished greatly in number, we have in a courageous way set the pace for the other classmen. In athletics all the boys made the first team except a few. In arts, we have been successful by winning the trophy of the song contest. Immeasurable joy will come in the future by recalling the acquaintances, social parties in the dining hall, Robertson Hall, Home Economics, and the class room incidents. In our Freshmen year, when we had our first recitation in public speaking, our knees shook beyond control, and our hearts beat 90 per — a class of misery. But gradually after much striving and earnest efforts we made it one of the most entertaining classes in our Advanced year. When education tends to promote such achievements, we have resolved to make the best use of available opportunities.
