TWO CONVICTS ESCAPE PEN

ENTIRE STUDENT BODY HELD AT BAY BY ESCAPED CONVICTS. CAP. FIELD NEARLY KILLED. HEROISM OF LEWIS SAVES THE DAY.

November 30 is marked as another eventful day on the Northwest School campus.

Don the first and Don the second, two deer in the Northwest School Park, heard the call of the Wild, and unable to withstand the temptation, they ventured forth through the gate, which some way or other had been opened.

Announcements were received at the Dining Hall when the student body was busy trying to satisfy its morning appetite, that nobody should leave the building before the run-a-ways were recaptured. About this time Cap. Field was having his second attempt at handling deer. Being more successful this time, he was able to down Don the first after having been dragged a couple of rods, which shows that Cap. is not scared of the old Buck even if he did break his leg two years ago.

When Don the first had been captured, attempts were made to capture the younger deer, but he proved to be too spry for them and led a large per cent of the student body a merry chase all forenoon. About twelve o'clock, Harry Lewis one of the last ones to give up the chase came back and got permission from headquarters to go out again with the rifle in the afternoon.

After another chase for about an hour and a half he was able to get within shooting distance, thereby ending the short life of Don the second. The last week the student body has been living in high hopes of seeing some nice fat juicy venison appear on the table before them, but as yet the watering of their mouths has been in vain. There are rumors afloat, however, regarding a treat for the get together dinner. We hope that the game warden will be busy elsewhere until after Dec. 17.

There was a young man named Ystenes, who in basket ball was noted for swiftness. But one day Edith said, "I think my dear Ted, We'd better get down to business."

RAMSE HAS EXCITING SUMMER TRAVELS 20 MILES TO SWEDISH FESTIVAL

The mumps were just leaving Mr. Ramse as school closed last spring, so he stayed over two days in order not to bring it home to his folks. On account of being very weak he was not able to do very much at first.

The Young People's Society was the first social gathering he attended. This lasted throughout the summer.

He attended a Swedish Church festival twenty miles away and witnessed the unveiling of the monument to Nels T. Wold at Winger.

He attended the fourth of July celebration at Fertile, and saw many of the Northwest School students. In the evening of the fourth he celebrated at Fosston.

He earned a trip to the State Fair on corn project. He went down in a special car from Crookston, arranged for ushers and club members. Visited in car all night.

Mr. Ramse ushered in the grandstand in the afternoon and evening. In the morning they were out on excursions.

FACULTY AND STUDENTS GIVE PROGRAMS
WALTERS & HURNER STAR IN ONE NIGHT STANDS

Several of the faculty and students have been going around the country putting on programs.

Harold Walters and Ben Hurner gave such a wonderful thesis that they have been called upon several times to appear upon programs. They were at Warren several weeks ago and last Friday night they were north of Warren and gave their demonstration.

Wesley to Covlin—"I can make an uglier face than you can."

Covlin—"Aw-look at the start you've got."
