FOXY FIVE RETURN TO U. S. A.

FOXY FIVE RETURN COMPLETE SUCCESSFUL WORLD TOUR AND REVISIT NATIVE TOWN

The Foxy Five has just returned to school after a very successful tour thru Northern Minnesota. Their pockets bulging with cash, their heads bursting with pride, their hearts overflowing with joy, and their stomachs full of lutefisk, they are still in a dazed condition and quite unable to give us the particulars of the tour. We have been able, however, to gather from outside sources a few interesting statistics concerning the events. The first performance was given at Gary, December 19. The concert party travelled by car, their prosperity being displayed in the fact that they drove Hudsons and Studebakers. The business was most efficiently handled by Mr. Forseth, financial expert of the Advanced Class. He became so keen that he could tell to the day the age of any child not eligible for admittance on a ten cent ticket. However, if the child was a day older, Mr. Forseth allowed him to enter for a dime rather than lose his customer. Mr. Luchau suffered a slight nervous shock, as he was delayed an hour while waiting for his girl, and almost missed the chance to introduce his colleagues to his home folks. The whole affair was so successful that the company raised the price before the next entertainment.

Of their experience in Grand Forks we have heard little except that they were all weakened by having eaten only one meal a day, and there wasn't enough strength in the whole crowd to shoot Dan McGrew.

At Key West the applause was thunderous owing to the fact that Owen Howe received a free ticket in return for lusty cheering.

The northern trip was a decided success on account of the concert company's receiving free board consisting of five square meals of lutefisk a day. Owing to the fact that he contracted a severe cold, Loven developed a fine bass voice that week, and the whole effect was greatly improved. Upon their return home Dick and Skat were discovered wearing new sweaters and shoes, Loven, a new pair of trousers, Arnold a flashy new necktie, Fat a clean collar and a new determination to stay above grade in geometry.

SONG CONTEST CAMPUS SOUNDS LIKE SPRING STUDENTS RIVAL CANARIES

All the students are looking forward to the song contest which is going to be held the 16th of this month. All four classes take part with great interest, especially the freshmen who are going around the campus tuning in their voices. They have a wonderful leader in Harold Norseth. Harold has practiced directing with a pitch fork all summer on his farm.

Arnold Aakre, director for the Junior Class, had some experience last year but never-the-less he has been keeping up his practice during the summer by directing the livestock on his father's farm. Harold Walters, director for the senior class for the past two years, has showed very much improvement, and so this year he should be the most up-to-date director. He worked on the State Farm all summer in the Horticulture Department, directing a team of horses. Einar Loven, of the Advanced class this year, is well known as a director but in spite of his reputation, Einar has been practicing on his accordion so he would get the correct swing to his arms and by so doing hopes to win the prize this year.

The advanced class has a number of good singers back this year and they have a specially strong tenor section with Aakre, Turgeon, and Forseth. Mr. Forseth in an interview today stated that they had high hopes of winning this year, due to the splendid harmony in the class.
