The Regents Visit

THE board of regents of the University of Minnesota, together with Pres. L. D. Coffman and Dean W. C. Coffey and heads of important University departments, visited the Northwest School on December 7. Among the regents present were Fred B. Snyder, president of the board; John G. Williams, Duluth; A. D. Wilson, Guthrie, J. E. Sundberg, Kennedy; Dr. Wm. J. Mayo, Rochester; Samuel Lewison, Canby; the Ex-officio members of the board, L. D. Coffman, President of the University; and J. M. McConnell, commissioner of education. Other members of the party were William T. Middlebrook, comptroller of the University; T. E. Stewart, in charge of publicity; Dean W. C. Coffey; Professor Andrew Boss, Chief of Agronomy and Farm Management; and H. A. Hildebrandt, Superintendent of buildings and grounds.

The purpose of the visit was to see the school while the students were present and to inspect the various needs concerning equipment, repairs, and buildings. During the visit at Crookston the board spent part of the forenoon in a tour of inspection and later attended assembly, at which time the members were introduced by Dean Coffey. Addresses were given by President Fred B. Snyder and President L. D. Coffman. Both addresses were of an inspirational nature but space does not permit quoting the speakers in detail.

At noon the members of the group were guests of the Crookston Association of Public Affairs. After a business session a reception for the regents was given by the faculty, and in the evening the visitors had dinner with the faculty and students at the dining hall. The regents left that evening for Morris. We were pleased to have this official visit by the regents, and the opportunity afforded the students to meet this group personally will be an inspiration for many years to come.
