

The Red River Aggie

WHEN OUR MOTHERS AND

Parents' Day

Parents' day held its sway,
As in the days of yore.
With modest pride, they all arrived
As they never did before.

The day was cold, and yet, behold!
The football game was played.
We lost the game, but just the same,
The team was not dismayed.

And in the night, with lights not bright,
The Hallowe'en party came.
We'll have to admit, it made a hit
And put all others to shame.

The stairs were dark and gloomy,
We all just shook with fright
The time we did the ghost walk,
On that chill November night.

The evening's program was games and fun,
Peaches and Flynn had a row.
Lambert and Ted told what school life would be
"Twenty-five years from now."

The party was entirely successful,
We admit we all had a good time.
But we never know what a job it would be
To make this blamed thing rhyme.
