

Greetings to the Alumni

THE class of 1929, who are soon to join the ranks of the Alumni, extend their greetings to all graduates of the Northwest School.

You are scattered not only through the Red River Valley, but throughout the country and your work has called you to many places and to many states where you are carrying on with the same old spirit of loyalty and showing real service.

Some of you are representing us in colleges and universities, where you are making enviable records. Some of you are making names for yourselves in the business world. Others are building up farms, and proving what modern agricultural methods can do in the country.

Alumni records have been few and far between, and information concerning your activities hard to obtain. The class of 1927 has left as its memorial to the school, an Alumni Register and desk, containing a card index. We hope that all Alumni returning to the school will avail themselves of the opportunity to sign the register, leaving us their present addresses and occupations. The school is interested in you and your work. Won't you help us to keep in touch with you?

As we join you, Alumni, we trust that we may live up to the standards set by you, and carry the spirit and influence of the Northwest School into our work and into our communities.
