

Junior: "What is that smell of rubber?"

Senior: "Oh! that's a Senior holding a Freshman's head over the radiator."

Soderberg: "I got zero in public speaking to-day."

Wedul: "That's nothing."

Soderburg: "What's nothing?"

Wedul: "Zero."

Mr. Mlinar: "I take great pleasure in giving you a mark of 98."

Florence Hanson: "Make it 108 and thoroughly enjoy yourself."

Estelle: "I saw Alice in a book store a month before Christmas buying a book she intends to give away as a present. I wonder why she was shopping so early."

Florence: "Well, you know she loves to read good books."

Julia Dale: "Why do you always sit out the dances with Lloyd?"

Florence Hanson: "I'd rather be on his lap than have him on my feet."

Particular lady: "Are those eggs strictly fresh?"

Mr. Pilkey: "Hey, Manley, see if those eggs are cold enough to sell yet."

Alma Jacobson: "May I get a drink?"

Miss Bede: "No, you just had a vacant period and that was the time to get your drink."

Miss Bede (a while later): "This is our singing period. I am going to let you choose the first song. Anyone have a choice?"

Alma Jacobson (weakly): "I should like to sing 'How Dry I Am'."

Lloyd Weaver: "You must economize. Think of the future. If I was to die where would you be?"

Florence Hanson: "I'd be here alright. The question is where would you be."

Dr. Dunham: "Yesterday we talked of poison—and Smith. To-day the topic is bacteria—"

Democratic student in back row: "—and Hoover."

Miss Simonson: "Why it is necessary for us to chew on food?"

Alice Naplin: "Because we have no gizzard."

Miss Simley: "Now we're through with Ivanhoe and Idylls of the King."

Harvey Johnson: "Shall I hand in my book?"

Miss Simley: "Surely, if you wish to give up your credit."

Hannah Dowell: "Oh, mamma, I've swallowed a safety pin."

Mrs. Dowell: "So that's where all my pins go." —Exchange.

Harold Cordes: "I say, old fellow, lend me an X."

John Covlin: "I would if I could but there's an Algebraic difficulty in the way."

Harold Cordes: "What's that?"

John Covlin: "An X with me is an unknown quantity." —Exchange

Mrs. Genung: "These pictures of me don't look natural."

Miss Bede: "Why didn't you think of that before you had them taken?"

—Exchange

Miss Warne: "Lillian, if the President and the Vice President died, who would get the job?"

Lillian Stepp: "The undertaker."

—Exchange

Miss Thompson: "What's the matter?"

Bill Stepp: "I washed a piece of dirty ice in hot water and now I can't find it."

Henning Lundberg: "Will you hold these books for me?"

Mr. Dowell: "Mr., I am superintendent of the Northwest School."

Henning: "Oh, that's all right. You look like an honest fellow."

Miss Simley (in English class): "Do you know what effect the sun has on the hills in early morning?"

Class: "No."

Miss Simley: "Well, I very seldom ever see the sun rise but I often see the moon rise on the hills."

John Covlin: "I hear Art was kicked off the squad."

Harry Confer: "How so?"

Covlin: "He was told to tackle the dummy and he tackled the coach."
