

GRAIN JUDGING

STOCK JUDGING

Grain Judging

Each year a grain judging team is selected from among the students to represent the Northwest School in competition with other agricultural schools of the Northwest. The contest is held during the Annual Winter Shows at Crookston.

Last fall, the largest number in the history of this school, answered the call of Mr. E. R. Clark, the coach, for candidates for the team. They showed very keen interest in their work up to the last minute. In this contest classes of the common grains are placed and reasons are given for the placings. One hundred and thirty-five samples of cereals, forage crops, potatoes and noxious weeds are identified, either in seed samples or plant specimens.

The members of the team, because of placing third, only a few points behind the leaders, and because of the experience they gained, feel that their efforts were well worth while, and the rest of the squad, with their experience, will strive for a better record next year.

Stock Judging

Stock judging is one of the many educational activities of this school. The stock judging team of this school competed with eight similar schools from North and South Dakota, Minnesota and Manitoba, Canada.

The judging team this year won first place in the contest, and brought home the silver cup for the first time in the history of the school. The keen interest of the many students who worked for the team and the never dying spirit of the coach, Mr. G. W. Wight, accomplished that which the school has never done before. Jesse Filipi, the high man of the contest, Allan Hoff ranking very high in the contest and the good work of Clinton Donley, upheld the honor for this school. All the men who went out for stock judging, whether they made the team or not, found that it was a very worth while activity.
