Freshmen

This year it did not take the fifty-three freshmen long to lose the bewildered look of new-comers, and to make for themselves a worthy place in school activities.

At their first regular meeting the Class of 1934 chose Miss Elsie Mae Kingston and Mr. Denis C. McGenty as their advisers. Lenning Aubol was elected class president; Helen Carlson, vice president; Gladys Quantock, secretary; Helen Krogstad, treasurer; Floyd Tack, sergeant-at-arms, and Ralph Sheldon, cheer leader.

Despite the fact that the freshmen are usually expected to take last place in class events, this year we won third in the Inter-Class Song Contest. Representatives of the class were on the football and basketball squads. The freshmen girls have been conspicuous on the gym floor, in violet suits with silver letters which they made in their sewing class. Nor are the freshmen to be overlooked when it comes to scholastic honors. Twenty-six per cent of the class made the honor roll during the first quarter.

The prospect of four successful school years seems assured to the eager Class of 1934.
