

Though fall the leaf,
Though fade the rose alluring,
Though vanish from our ken the perfect hour;
Life still is fair, and comradeship, enduring,
Is rare and sweet as Omar's fadeless flower.

—Bertha G. Avery.

