A MESSAGE

from President Ford

TO the graduating class and to the readers of this volume I may appear just as a picture on this page. But I should like to be thought of as one who is interested in what you have done and even more in what you will be doing as you go out to start your careers and found your homes. I have a right to this interest because each graduate is now and will be all his life a representative of the University of Minnesota. That is a responsibility I hope you will never forget and to which you will always measure up. To the sustaining good wishes of your teachers permit me to add my own and those of the whole University.
