

Prologue

We, the Senior Class of 1939, present a pageant of youth and progress as depicted in school life.

As the scene opens on our pageant and we pass through the campus gates, we see many familiar landmarks—Robertson, the home of all the girls; Kiehle, with its auditorium and library; Stephens, the home of the Freshman and Junior boys; the Dining Hall, where we enjoy daily meals and special banquets; Hill building with its classrooms; Senior, dormitory for Advanced and Senior boys; and the Gymnasium, the center of sports.

The directors lead us onward with encouraging words, knowledge and sometimes necessary discipline—ever friendly, ever kind. Youth follows with loyal school spirit. We strive to make the most of our opportunities under their able guidance.

Youth carries on to sporting fame in football, basketball, track, hockey, and other sports. We follow our leaders avidly and praise our heroes highly.

To new achievements we ever seek to rise in our chosen field be it music, public speaking, sports, or some other field of endeavor.

And finally, we find joyous living. Our most vivid memories will be of many happy hours spent in pleasant association with our fellow classmates.

The curtain rises on our pageant of youth and progress.
