

CROPS JUDGING

BACK ROW: P. Lambert, A. Torkelson, D. Durbahn

“A Growing Day and a Waking Field”

The Crops Judging Squad is selected from the group of boys who are registered in the Judging Class held during the fall quarter. Shortly after the opening of the winter quarter Coach E. R. Clark selects those boys who will comprise the school squad and intensive practices are then held twice weekly.

The work in Crops Judging Class consists of judging seven classes of grains and legumes, identifying weed seeds, weed plants, cereals, and forage plants and seeds, potatoes and potato diseases.

Donald Nelson, Wilbur Hallstrom, and Dell Durbahn were the trio selected to represent the Northwest School in the sub-collegiate competitions at the annual Red River Valley Winter Shows. The Northwest School team placed third in the contest. High man on the Northwest School team was Donald Nelson.

Coach Clark's enthusiasm for Crops Judging has served as an inspiration and stimulus to squad members and the success of the Northwest School team in these contests each year is due to his fine leadership.

The personnel of the Crops Judging squad is:

Dell Durbahn
Wilbur Hallstrom

Arnold Torkelson
