

PARENTS' DAY

"I Want a Girl, Just Like the Girl That Married Dear Old Dad"

From early morning sunrise until noon-time the anxious eyes of Northwest School students were in the direction of the campus gates. "Is that our car coming?" "Oh, No!" "Shucks." "There's another." "Yep, that's it." "Hello, Dad; Hello, Mom."

Yes, it is Parents' Day. More than eight hundred fathers and mothers join son or daughter for this very important day on the campus.

The program begins with a visitation of classes and dad and mother get first hand information on how much son or daughter has learned and what opportunities there are for learning. Then, there is the dinner in the Dining Hall; time out for not only feasting but for sociability with other dads and mothers. Next comes an inspection of the student quarters in the dormitories and then the traditional Parents' Day program in the auditorium.

The finale is the Coffee Hour and the inspection of the Home Project Show in the gymnasium.

Parents' Day is the biggest day in the entire school year.

Let's get some coffee, and let's look over the Home Project Exhibits.

That goes for us, too.

Father Pederson is proud of son Palmer and two future prospects look over the situation.

The Martins are pleased to be with son, Lawrence, again.

Oscar and Harold Pearson give mother their nicest smile.
