

1940 SENIOR DAY

Editor-in-chief Ed McMillan presents Superintendent McCall with the first copy of the 1940 Aggie.

And here—the editor elect of the 1941 Aggie hears the announcement made for the first time and is not only congratulated by the retiring editor but awarded a complimentary copy.

"Boy, ain't it swell!"
"Oh, kid—it's a honey!"
Donald Ste. Marie looks on with Camilla Ecklund while Edith Clow and Telfred Slettvedt chuckle over the contents.

A colorful throng of Seniors, in purple and gold caps and capes, took possession of the campus on Senior Day, March 21. It was not only Senior Day but it was Aggie Day. The march into the auditorium, two by two, was greeted with applause and cheers and upon assembling on the stage the entire Senior Class cheered Advanced, Juniors, and Freshmen before proceeding with the program of the day. 1940 Editor presided and introduced various members of the class who presented skits. Miss Grace Mary Warne and Mr. R. S. Dunham beamed cheerfully as their advisees, the Seniors, did a beautiful job. Congratulations to the class of 1940 whose Senior Day program and festivities and whose Aggie will long be remembered.
