

STOCK JUDGING TEAM

Standing: L. Clow, E. Nelson, N. Thormodson, G. Kotchan
Sitting: I. Johnson, P. Pederson, Mr. Kiser, H. Hoff

For Students interested in the selection of good animals, the Northwest School has organized an activity in which those students may not only be competing against one another, but may also be learning how to recognize good livestock when they see it. This group, under the instruction of Mr. Kiser, meets three times a week. These classes are held until the annual Winter Shows, when the three best judges are selected for the team. Sub-collegiate teams from Minnesota, North and South Dakota compete in the contest held annually at Winter Shows. The team representing the Northwest School this year was made up of Henry Hoff, Palmer Pederson, and Irwin Johnson. Although Irwin Johnson placed first in dairy judging, and Henry Hoff placed first in horse judging and also first in general livestock, our team bowed to St. Paul and Grand Rapids by the very close margin of only twenty-six points.
