

1941 SENIOR DAY

Top row: Lefty and Gusty try to look ferocious. Clarence Sargent, Editor of the 1941 "Aggie" congratulates Vernon Hoppe, Editor-Elect for the 1942 "Aggie"

In circle: Joan Phillips and Leroy Larsen fight it out.
Bottom row: A dangerous group of bloodthirsty pirates; Orlo Lintvet, Harry Christianson, Earl Hvidsten and John Ofstedahl. The boys relax after a strenuous day by playing Chinese checkers. The group includes I. Johnson, P. Hasty, M. Novak, L. Nordling, and A. Gunderson.

Senior Day was off to a roaring start at 6 a. m. on March 19, 1941. On their traditional tour of the campus, the Seniors were successful in awakening everyone in the dormitories. The members of the class were dressed in pirate regalia and all the proper accessories and weapons were flaunted by each.

At the assembly, the Seniors wore cap and gown for the presentation to the school of the 1941 "Aggie". The class prophecy, will, and history were read. At lunch and dinner the class sat at special tables which had been appropriately decorated. A party and dance was given in the Aggie Inn after dinner and at ten o'clock a tired but happy class trooped off to their rooms agreeing that it had been a wonderful day.
