The Student Council, an organization which this year made its initial appearance on the Northwest School campus, purports "to establish a harmonious contact between the student body and faculty, to provide a medium of expression for student opinion, and to work with the faculty in the government of the school insofar as the University policy will permit student voice in the administration."

Each class is represented on the council by one boy and one girl, who have been nominated by their respective classes and elected by the general student body; the faculty is represented by one of their group chosen as adviser by the student members of the council.

Meeting in conjunction with their first adviser, Mr. Barron, the council has taken steps to improve student conduct and raise the level of student thought and behavior. To develop self-control, self-reliance, initiative, intelligent leadership, and intelligent obedience to authority—these are the objectives of our student council. It remains with the student body to support the policies promulgated by the students themselves and adopted by the council.
