One of the most active organizations on the campus is the Young Women's and Young Men's Christian Association. Now acting as a joint group they not only carry the responsibility of a religious educational program but also sponsor a number of social events during the school year.

At the beginning of the fall term the YM and YW entertained the boys and girls, respectively, at the boys' Pow Wow and the girls' Frolic. Another party that helped new students and faculty members become acquainted and built up the Northwest School spirit of fun and comradeship was the all-school reception occurring the first Saturday evening of the school year and also being sponsored by the YW and YM.

Both boys and girls gather for the joint Sunday morning meetings held in the parlor of Robertson Hall. At these meetings Y officers preside and members of the faculty lead discussions or present food for thought in the form of short talks. A highlight in this year's program was the inspiring message which Dean Bailey addressed to the Y members of the Northwest School.

The Sunday evening chapel services in the auditorium are attended by the student body. Ministers of Crookston churches and other off campus speakers graciously lend their time to deliver messages of inspiration and guidance. Music is furnished by congregational singing and special numbers by the Advanced Choir. At the close of these devotional gatherings, educational films are shown.
