

Crops Judging

C. Davids, G. Ross, P. Shirrick, Mr. Dunham, J. Wiger, A. Egtvet

The crops judging team, consisting of three men and an alternate, was selected from the group of seven students registered in this activity. This team annually represents the school at the Winter Shows.

The period before the contest is spent in meticulous study of weed seeds and plants, small grains, diseases, grasses, legumes and potatoes so they may be identified and appraised. The team also judges six classes of crops, distinguishes the good from the bad, and rates them according to relative merit.

Crops judging is an extra-curricular pursuit that is fascinating and of great value to those interested in agriculture. The success of this team is in a measure due to the enthusiasm and industry which the able Coach Dunham has inspired and encouraged.
