"The Fraternal Order of Grunts and Groans" started its 1944-45 season with only one letterman and no one to coach them. It looked like a harrowing season for the squad, but with his usual determination and courage, Captain Menford Brekke took over the job of coaching his thirty-seven recruits. As a coach, Menford has succeeded in the true sense of the word. From a large amount of eager but "green" material, he has formed a gritty, capable squad of wrestlers who will be able to put up a stiff, heads-up battle against any opposition.

Although no contests have been held as yet, Captain Brekke hopes that we may book a meet in the near future. And with the kind of leadership the Aggies have, and the kind of scrappy material we have to work with, we think the Aggies will be a good bet.
