The 1944 football team started the season with little practice but with new confidence and determination instilled by their new coach, Mr. Lysaker. After a short period of arduous practice the team made a good showing but was defeated in a game with the Crookston Cathedrals. Homecoming festivities were observed in connection with the big game of the year, with Morris. The defeat of Morris won for the Northwest School Aggies Ossie, the victory trophy, and the Conference Championship for another year.
