

Setting

In any story the setting forms the background against which the characters act. It tempers the plot, molds the characters, puts its stamp on the whole atmosphere of the story. So to this story of a school year the physical scene of the Northwest School and, even more, the personalities that are a part of the school are extremely important. This section tells of the place and people that are the Northwest School.

