

E. Thompson, L. Anderson, C. Zak,
P. Lerud, Miss Larsen, D. Short

Each semester finds a new group of would-be journalists busily engaged in writing copy, making dummies, forming headlines, cutting stencils, typing, stapling, and distributing the semi-monthly "Aggie Rouser".

The "Rouser", under the supervision of Miss Margaret E. Larsen, strives to put into practice the principles of good journalism.

In addition to the reports on news and sports stories, the editorials and humor, two students had special columns of general appeal: Elizabeth Thompson entitled her column "Fad Fashions" while Earl Edwardh called his "Thoughts While Studying".
