

THE AGGIE ROUSER

Left to right: LeRoy Johnson, Ray Wallenberg, Dennis Driscoll, Harriet Balstad, Marwood Hamrick, George Huard, and Deloris Jackson.

"Where's that story on the basketball game last night?" asks a bewildered sports editor.

"Here, write a headline for this, but quick," says the editor.

"Did anyone see that stencil?" queries an impatient artist. All these are familiar sounds from the Rouser Room in Hill Building during practically any period in the day when the Rouser is due to come out.

Under the helpful supervision of Miss Margaret Lafsen, the journalism class puts out the school paper designed to inform and amuse the students.

Each semester six issues are published. There are two staffs that function during the school year.

Since the journalism class is required of all advanced students, each person who graduates from the fourth year has had experience in working on a school paper.
