Friendly home

It was a clear, cold, sharp day when I decided to visit the campus. Upon my arrival at the gates, I was overwhelmed at the size of the campus.

I had been informed that the gymnasium was a popular place at four in the afternoon. I decided this would be my first stop. As I came in the building, I noticed something coming toward me at a great speed. At second glance I discovered it was Teddy Zumbusch sliding down the rail backwards.

I opened the gym door and wondered just what was going on. Out in the middle of the floor were two boys trying to pull each other apart. Going up as close as I dared, I found it was Lyle Tollerud and Joel Vesledahl wrestling. Lyle even stopped twisting Joel's arm long enough to wink at me.

A glance at my watch told me I had better keep on my way if I were going to see the whole campus. The New Dorm was the next building that caught my eye, and with my curiosity now aroused, I entered to find out what went on. I was welcomed by a friendly lady at the desk and found girls doing everything from telephoning to knitting.

The friendly, homey atmosphere of Senior Hall, home of the freshman girls, invited me to make that my next call. Cheerful Mrs. Edwards greeted me at the door and a group of girls was gathered around the piano.

Just around the corner from Senior, I came upon Owen Hall. Above the buzz of saws and the pounding of hammers, I heard Miss Hughbanks saying, "Now CONCENTRATE!"

As I opened the door of Hill Building, I heard a

Eyes off the keyboard!
