

HOMER D. FAUSCH

OLAF C. SOINE

... how to be good providers

BRUCE C. BERESFORD

In this department are offered the "back bone" courses of our ag. school. Without these courses our curriculum would be little different from a regular high school.

Grain crops, forage crops, and soils are taught by Dr. Soine along with the extra curricular activity dubbed "crops judging". In these classes the boys learn how to be better judges of wheat, alfalfa, and soil.

Mr. Beresford works with the students in fruits and vegetables, biology, botany, and forestry classes.

Through the classes of animal husbandry and livestock breeding presided over by Mr. Fausch, students learn the "moving parts, methods of lubrication, and the instructions for use" of various animals.

In meats class, taught by Mr. Kiser, students learn the proper methods of dissecting animal carcasses. Classes in livestock management and dairy production under him are also offered.

In the livestock judging activity, the students learn the finer points in classifying the animal kingdom.
