

o dream and plan for

Although we students come from plains and rolling hills, from large families or small, from prosperous or modest homes, we all have one thing in common — our parents have passed on to us a love of farming.

Whatever our future life may hold for us, we will never forget the contentment, the happiness, and the sense of achievement we found while living on a farm.

Most of us will not remember farm life as only a cherished memory because we're going to stay on the farm; maybe not the one we grew up on, but one which we can plan and build ourselves. And every day of our lives we will remember and use what we have learned at the Northwest School.
