

... And now it's time for us to leave our school. We've had four years of laughter and tears — of learning and lazy times. We've made life-long friends, and now that we look back, we've even liked our teachers. Who can count all the ways we will remember these years? How many times won't we wish we were back in school? It isn't easy for us to leave a place which has been our life for these four happy years.
