"Get out from behind those curtains and get to your posts." Those are the unforgettable words of Mrs. Ittner.

"Stay off that apron because you might get it dirty," yells Dick Schleicher. But, in spite of it all, the practices still go on.

In a lonely house with weird lights, music from a locked organ, and strangling hands, the junior class put on the three-act mystery comedy, "The Valley of Ghosts," as its production last spring.
