

A. MORLEY PILKEY

HARRY SODERBURG

OLAF C. SOINE

A typical family scene that may be found in many of our faculty homes.

LAVON SUMPTION

CHARLES WHITING

JOYCE YOUNGREN

By adding bits of humor to all his classes of poultry production, MR. PILKEY is able to keep the enthusiasm of his many students in whom he has a great interest. He also has a freshmen math class. In his classes of welding, blacksmithing, and farm shop, MR. SODERBURG has the desire to pass unto his students new ideas which are necessary in the operation of a modern farm. MR. SOINE plays an important role at experimental plots during the summer months developing new ideas in agronomy which he passes on to his students during the school year. He also coaches the crop judging team here at the Northwest School. MR. SUMPTION has ability to put across to his students the fundamentals of livestock management and production in a way which will be easily remembered and applied in later life. As cross country coach he shows his spirit in working with the boys to develop a winning team. MR. WHITING'S ingenious wit and jokes add to the interest of his social science classes. His wonderful assistance to the football and basketball teams has enabled them to turn in a good season. Boys take notice! In choosing your mate pick one of the girls who has been in the sewing and related art classes of MRS. YOUNGREN'S. She has passed a lot of wonderful ideas and knowledge on to these girls. They should make very good homemakers if they use all they have been taught.
