

The Home Economics Building

Here within the confines of these walls
Was held the daytime and the night-time
Of those who first walked her halls—
One building was "The School" so said the sign,
And fierce the pride of those from farm and town
Who learned to love her as their own,
In spite of those who jibed and called out "fool";
Not knowing that in this new school
Was given more than learning for the mind.

Margaret E. Larsen