

FRESHMAN

From the great farming area of eastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota 67 people arrived on the campus of Northwest School, registered, and became students of this school for the first time.

Our first day, September 29, was really a day of confusion. After registering we received our books in the crowded library. The morning went fast. After a few questions, we finally found the dining hall and ate our first meal here. A tour of the campus followed the meal. At 2:00 we had our first test, an I.Q. test. It was the only test we have had so far that no one has flunked. By the time the evening meal rolled around, we felt more like students. The school provided us with entertainment after the evening meal that resulted in a pleasant ending of our first great day at this school we have learned to love.

The second day we felt rather sure of ourselves at first, but we did have difficulties finding some of the classrooms.

On Thursday of that first week the first formal meeting of the class of 1962 was called together by our advisors. We elected our officers and from that time on we have come to feel more and more as a united group with much in common.
