

Student Council

The Student Council is composed of three representatives from each class and the student body president. The student body president is automatically the president of the student council. This representative body is the mediator between the student body and faculty and, therefore, functions as the sounding board for student ideas and opinions.

This group has tried to give you, the student body, the type of representation that the faculty will respect.

During their meetings, they discuss means of helping the students and making life more enjoyable for them while on the campus. At the same time, they try to relieve the faculty by taking a considerable amount of responsibility in such things as homecoming festivities and certain parts of Parents' Day.

The council backs anything they think will help the school and keep the student body happy. The sock hops after the home basketball games were brought about through them.

They feel that enforcing the student code is the only way to have it respected. They have also adopted the idea of a dress up day and are making an effort to set aside one day a month for this. The first dress up day was on Parents' Day. Teachers were pleasantly surprised to behold a near miracle. Students came in suits!

Your student government works for you and your school, striving to build higher the spirit we share together here at our school.
