

Our Administration

For the moment the telephones are silent and not ringing insistently; no teachers or agriculture people are waiting with problems to present to our superintendent, Dr. Youngquist. But moments like this are few and far between for this energetic "little Swede!"

Many a night a light can be seen burning in the office of Dr. Youngquist or Mr. Reiersgord our principal. This is a sign that they are at work on those things that require quiet and meditation. The daylight hours are a series of interruptions, parent conferences, interviews, high pressure salesmen, refractory students, harried teachers, telephone calls, college applications, important documents to sign, and multifarious miscellany.

Despite their hectic day and busy night, Mr. Reiersgord and Dr. Youngquist manage to remain entirely human. They find their school unfailingly interesting, if demanding.

As school administrators they have few equals and probably no superiors. They have put our school on the map, and we are glad they are here!
