

Dateline--NWSA, Any school day: Here is an up-to-the-minute report of the news of what is happening in the world of history.

In world history we have sailed the route of the ancient Phoenicians, visited the ancient cities of Greece and Rome, and watched as they all fell victims to their enemies only to end in chaos.

The word in American history is that the British were defeated and that the small union of independent states were now drawn together to form a government based upon some of the principals that were very much a part of the first democracy that flourished in Greece centuries before.

Because history and social studies are required by all students, Mr. Bergman and Mr. David Anderson are employed to make sure that we learn the significance of history in the past, present, and future of the world.

History Is a Living Subject

I wonder if the seats that Larry Wilkens and Sylvester Zurn sit in are the "A" seats because they are right up at Mr. Bergman's desk.

"Is the test hard?" This question will be asked of these students who are working diligently on their tests by those who have not yet taken it. Everyday is an adventure in Mr. Bergman's class, even test day.
