

Math Meets Demands

Today the world presents a challenge to American youth. More than ever before, mathematics and physics are considered fundamental for survival in the atomic age. Here Mr. Tharaldson and students alike are meeting this challenge head-on with a well rounded program ranging from elementary algebra on through trigonometry, geometry and physics.

