

Guidance Helps Develop Good Habits

Perhaps the first person that all new students at our school seem to get acquainted with is Mr. H. H. Lysaker, who heads our school guidance and testing program.

All new students who attend the Northwest School take a series of aptitude tests, English proficiency tests, and general intelligence tests. Of course, these tests require study and examination by the director so that he can interview all students who plan to go to college, to select a school suitable to their needs and helps them as much as possible to obtain scholarships where there is a possibility.

Every Thursday, our guidance director meets with the freshmen to answer questions and help them to develop good manners, good personalities, study habits and to become good school citizens.
