

It is at the banquet that we first realize that this is the beginning of the end; that though we had thought we just couldn't wait to get out of high school, we now know what mixed emotions mean--that there is a thread of sadness mixed in with our rosy dreams. Perhaps this is why tears come to our eyes as one sings "Auld Lange Syne."

For Seniors, Memories Live Forever

Events follow fast, each close upon the heels of its predecessor. Final exams, the last barrier between us and our diplomas, the prom and Senior Day. Then comes commencement, a most impressive and somewhat sad ceremony. The solemn tones of "Pomp and Circumstance" echo through the corridor and auditorium as long lines of cap and gown clad seniors walk with measured steps down the aisle and file with deep solemnity into their honored seats to listen to the graduation address. Then the diplomas are conferred. For each of us one phase of our life is ended, but the future lies ahead. High school is a varied chapter of our lives that we have lived, loved and shall always remember.

ALDEN CARLSON
Stephen, Minn.

"When he feels like studying, he lies down until the feeling passes."

LEROY CHRISTENSEN
Euclid, Minn.

"I'll worry about tomorrow when it comes."

ROGER BUBENDORF

East Grand Forks, Minn.

"It's a good thing when a man knows what he pretends to know."

DENNIS DIAMOND

Humboldt, Minn.

"High school days have their delights, but they can't compare with those high school nights."

DONNA BURIANEK

Gardner, N. Dak.

"If success depends on words, she will succeed."

EUGENE DUFAULT

Red Lake Falls, Minn.

"His directing talents might lead him to Hollywood."

