

Dedication

We, the senior class of the Northwest School of 1964 dedicate our annual to two great men who have served the Northwest School most faithfully, Dr. Edward C. Frederick and Dr. Diedrich Reimer. These two well loved men have accepted new challenges in other parts of the nation, but they will be remembered by everyone who had contact with them. Their jovial, easy-going manner was appealing to anyone who worked for or with them. Yet they could maintain a light but firm atmosphere in class. An occasional joke to illustrate a point or to liven the discussion was characteristic of both of these men.

The farmers and businessmen of the area also owe a debt of gratitude to these outstanding young researchers. The technical data they have obtained through well planned experiments have benefited the agricultural industry, not only in this area, but throughout the state and nation. Dr. Frederick in dairy and beef research and Dr. Reimer in swine and sheep research have contributed immeasurably to agriculture in this day of scientific farming.
