The Senior Class of 1964

As we look at our last four years at the Northwest School, many thoughts fill our minds. There are things that we want to remember and there are things that we don't want to remember. There are events such as proms, homecomings, and ball games, not to slight the education we have received here from a superior faculty. The dormitory life has yielded much in the way of fun, disagreements, and an education on how to get along with our fellow students. To be sure, there have been problems, as can be expected at a school where we live together all of the time. But we, as the senior class, believe that it all adds up to make us better citizens for the future.
