

The students at the Northwest School have the opportunity of taking either one of the practical courses--mechanical drawing or carpentry. The experienced and very able teacher, Mr. Manzhuber, has a well equipped shop and drawing room to aid him in his duties.

The carpentry class teaches the students basic skills in woodworking which can be used around the farm; while mechanical drawing class gives the student a start as a draftsman if he wishes to continue in this field. Although Mr. Manzhuber is kept busy with his classes, he is also leader of the Carpentry Club, which is a select group of students pursuing the skills of carpentry.
