

Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom, Director

Administrators

Almost three years ago a gentleman with a quick step, a sparkle in his eye, and a singleness of purpose arrived in Crookston to start a new college. The school is the University of Minnesota Technical Institute; the gentleman, Dr. Stanley Sahlstrom, director. Under his enthusiastic guidance, Minnesota Tech has already become an institution of more than three hundred students, with a variety of technical programs undergirded by academics, activities to suit every taste and interest, and a dedicated faculty that has doubled during the past year.

Helping to keep the wheels rolling are Charles Peterson, student affairs; Dale Knotek, student activities; Karl Bornhoft, business manager; and Richard Christenson, admissions and records. Conrad Kvamme and Dorothy McCulla share the public relations duties.
