David Behr is shown here with the trophy he won at the DECA conclave. Also winning recognition was David Lysaker. Both boys represented the local club in speaking contests.

DECAs Are Dynamic

DECA, which stands for Distributive Education Clubs of America, has an active Tech chapter led by Larry Delude. Dedicated to the education of the student majoring in business, it has as its goal the development of competent personnel for the three M's—Marketing, Merchandising, and Management. It aims also to prepare its members for better citizenship.

Among the group's activities this year has been a marketing survey on the city's businesses. About twenty members attended the state convention held in St. Paul late this winter, where two of its young men won honors for their presentations.

Club officers this year were Bill Bang, Rene Baron, Dianne Glad, Gene Dufault, Larry Delude, and Harold Christen.
