

Intramural Sport Has Hot Contests

Intramural athletics has played a big part in Tech's recreation program. Student and faculty teams under the supervision of Dale Knotek participated in IM touch football, volleyball, basketball, and softball.

The undefeated McCall II team captured the football championship. A strong Gravestones squad edged out the faculty to take the top berth in volleyball. A strange name but a strong team describes the basketball champs, the Pseti Tao Minis. The BFD's, though organized late in the season, went on to win the softball.

Both the swimming pool and gymnasium were open for student and faculty fun at designated hours every day during the three quarters. Tennis courts provided outdoor exercise for the physically ambitious during the fall and spring, and a skating rink was a popular place during the icy winter.

Six men calling themselves the Gravestones won the volleyball championship. They are Josephson, Thompson, Grossinger, (first row); Lind, Eickhoff, and Ruis (second row).

The Pseti Tao Minis took the toll of the other entrants in basketball: Kroulik, Schleiter, Ward (first row); Larson, Werk, Bounds (second row).

Basketball cheerleaders were G. Vignes, N. Beresford, J. Miller, S. Hoeft, and R. Baron.

Allan Gustafson was named "athlete of the year" by Coach Lysaker and teammates.
